Sequence One: Me, My Friends, and My Family

Tasks 1 and 2: I listen to my elder brother Samir.

Samir 1: You use your eyes to see, to read a book or to watch TV. Eyes can have different colours: black, brown, blue or green. They can also be big, small or slanted like Chinese people's eyes. Without your eyes, you can't see me now. Some people can't see; they're blind.

Samir 2: You use your mouth to speak. With your mouth, you can also eat or drink. A mouth can be big or small. It has two lips. Women have red lips because they put on red lipstick. Some people can't speak at all; they're dumb.

Samir 3: You use your ears to hear. We have one ear on each side of our heads, left and right. With your ears you can listen to music or to your teacher in class. Some people can't hear; they're deaf.

Samir 4: You use your nose to smell. With your nose you can smell perfume or mum's cooking when you come from school for lunch. A nose can be big or small.

Samir 5: You use your two hands to hold things. We have five fingers on each hand. With your fingers, you can hold your pen when you write or a spoon when you eat.

Samir 6: There's hair on our heads. It can have different length and colours. Hair can be long or short, black or dark, fair or blonde. Old people have grey or white hair. Hair can have different shapes or styles. It can be straight, wavy like sea waves, frizzy or curly. Some people don't have any hair at all; they're bald.

Task 1. Samir is my elder brother. He is a high school student. He's good at English. So, he is helping me to learn the different parts of my body in English. I listen to him and match each part (picture) with its corresponding name.

1. small slanted black eyes

2. big blue eye

3. big green eye

4. small nose

5. big nose

6. short straight black hair

7. long straight black hair
